

Why did we install solar & battery storage systems on Christmas Island?

Christmas Island - home to the greatest migration of red crabs in the world, and an island that is almost all national park. We installed solar and battery storage systems at two sites on Christmas Island for Parks Australia to provide clean power to their main headquarters and research field station.

Does Christmas Island National Park have solar & battery storage?

Solar and battery storage for Christmas Island National Park. Christmas Island - home to the greatest migration of red crabs in the world, and an island that is almost all national park.

Is Christmas Island a cyclone prone location?

While Christmas Island is not officially considered to be a cyclone prone location (AECOM 2010) projections suggest there will be fewer cyclones overall, but predict an increase in the frequency of high intensity cyclones. This may result in canopy loss and tree fall. Canopy gaps can take up to 10 years to close.

Does Christmas Island have a marine area?

The park includes a marine area where the terrestrial area of the park adjoins the sea. The marine area extends 50 metres beyond the low water line. The park's marine area covers approximately 2.1 square kilometres and the Territory of Christmas Island water extends 12 nautical miles from the island's shore.

What impact will cyclones have on Christmas Island?

These impacts are likely to lead to a reduced asset life and an increase in maintenance requirements (AECOM 2010). Currently, no buildings on Christmas Island are designed to cyclone ratings (AECOM 2010) which leaves them further prone to the adverse impacts of increased high intensity storm activity.

What are the characteristics of Christmas Island's Ecosystems?

Characteristics of Christmas Island's ecosystems include a relatively high proportion of endemic terrestrial species, evolutionary isolation until relatively recent human arrival, native species that have evolved with few competitors, and many species with small population sizes.
