Bhutan's commitment to environmental preservation is deeply ingrained in its policy framework and cultural ethos. Here's a brief overview of how Bhutan has achieved carbon negativity: Sustainable Forestry: With over 70% of its land covered in forests, Bhutan places a strong emphasis on sustainable forestry practices

Introduction and Background: Bhutan, a carbon-negative country, faces a growing threat to its environment due to climate change. Accelerated glacial melt and unpredictable river flows are impacting hydropower generation, the country's primary energy source. This has led to increased reliance on fossil fuel-derived energy imports from India, jeopardising Bhutan's carbon ...

The GEF Eco Tourism project's flagship species for ecotourism are red pandas, black-necked cranes, Ludlow's Bhutan Glory butterflies, golden langurs, golden mahseers, and other exotic birds of Bhutan. Ludlow's Bhutan Glory. The Bumdeling Wildlife Sanctuary in Trashiyangtse is home to this endangered species of butterfly.
