

How do commercial goods arrive in Timor-Leste?

When commercial goods enter Timor-Leste, they do so by air or by sea, or via a land border. When the goods arrive, they are initially considered to be in "temporary storage." Following arrival, there is a legal requirement for the goods to be placed under a "customs treatment" within a specified time frame.

What types of goods can I store in Timor-Leste?

Once approved by customs, you will be able to store any types of goods within your storage facility, including full container loads and partial container loads. With power outages commonplace in Timor-Leste, ensuring that your goods do not spoil while they await clearance in a port is always challenging.
