

A very stable solar system. Hey... it looks like... Create planets for building your own unique solar system! Make your Solar System is a casual gravity simulation game (N-body simulator) where you create planets and stars for generating stable solar systems (or just crashing stuff for fun, is up to you!). A not so stable solar system...

Welcome to Solar System Builder! Here you can create your own solar system and watch it evolve. I've tried to be as scientifically accurate as possible in the simulation. Feel free to tell me if there's anything you want me to add that's not ...

If you build your solar system on a roll of toilet paper, you can make the Sun about .4 inches (10 mm) across and still fit the entire solar system on the roll. A standard roll of toilet paper has about 450 sheets that are about 4.375 inches long, hence the roll is about 164 feet long. You should check your toilet paper for length. Some are longer.

Demonstrate Your Model: Display your solar system model and explain the various components, such as the sun, planets, moons, and asteroids. Point out key features of each celestial body and how they are interconnected ...

Make Your Own Pocket Solar System There's a lot of empty space in our solar system - distances between planets are vast! The solar system is made up of eight planets and many other objects orbiting the sun. In addition to planets, there are moons, comets, asteroids, dust, and gas, all influenced by the

This is the first test of a full solar system game/ simulator I want to make. I released this to let people play it while I take feedback and figure out where to take the game. (that's why there's no art) Thanks for Playing : ) ps: the game does have a bug where the planet will launch and then slingshot the opposite direction.

Since you're using Stellaris to create a render of a system rather than to actually play Stellaris it might make more sense to force all the stellar objects over to the same side of the star, so you can just take a picture of a slice of the system and still have all the major planets visible rather than having to zoom out to full system view.
